

Here is the news article with unnecessary parts, ads, author information, and titles removed:

British number two Katie Boulter says she's had "hundreds of messages" containing "love" and "appreciation" since sharing the abusive messages she receives on social media. Boulter agreed to sit down with BBC Sport to provide unprecedented insight into the volume and nature of abuse received by players, including sharing screenshots of her private inbox.